About the Event

Upholding Tribal Sovereignty: Protecting Native Places in a Shifting Landscape

The National Association of Tribal Historic Preservation Officers (NATHPO) conference is the only national gathering of Tribal, federal, state, and industry representatives committed to protecting Native places. The conference is a keystone of NATHPO's work to empower Tribal preservation leaders to protect culturally important places that perpetuate Native identity, resilience, and cultural endurance. Connections to cultural heritage sustain the health and vitality of Native peoples.

Please join us in making this the best Annual NATHPO Conference yet! Each sponsorship opportunity provides attendees with specific conference necessities, including almost all meals, educational sessions, engaging workshops, and field trips, entertainment, and conference materials. Conference costs have increased, and your support is critical in ensuring NATHPO provides the national Tribal Historic Preservation community the respect and rejuvenating event they deserve.
